

Procurement Australia has established a professional network linking female procurement specialists around Australia.

Chaired by Procurement Australia Board Director and City of Melbourne Councillor Susan Riley, and launched at our 11th Annual Procurement Australia Conference in 2016, the network brings together senior procurement women from member organisations around Australia.

The network's aim is to develop professional skills and expertise, and encourage and mentor up-and-coming women in the procurement field through a series of bi-monthly meetings across the states.

Network meetings will define and discuss contemporary issues and challenges, share learnings, and light the way for future successful female procurement specialists. Work issues will be identified and dissected along with the challenges women procurement professionals face.

If you would like to be part of this new network please contact Liz van Doorn liz.vandoorn@procurementaustralia.com.au or call 0423 847 519.
